JAIRAM IN TROUBLE FOR 'MORE TEMPLES'

New Delhi: The BJP hit out at rural development minister Jairam Ramesh on Saturday for his comment that there are more temples in the country than toilets, saying he should not make such statements which hurt the "fine fabric of faith and religion" in the country. "Making of toilets and having faith in a religious place of worship are two different things. India is a multicultural country where we should have unblemished faith in a temple, a mosque, a gurudwara or a church. You cannot juxtapose the two," BJP spokesperson Rajiv Pratap Rudy said. He advised Mr Jairam to instead concentrate "salvaging the battered image of UPA government".

FACEBOOK REACHES 1 BILLION USERS

New York: Facebook has exceeded one billion active users, an "amazing" milestone for the social networking site that now reaches one out of every seven people on the Earth. "This morning, there are more than one billion people using Facebook actively each month," said Mark Zuckerberg, the Co-founder and CEO of the social media giant. "If you're reading this: thank you for giving me and my little team the honour of serving you. Helping a billion people connect is amazing, humbling and by far the thing I am most proud of in my life." Topping the one billion mark means that Facebook now reaches one out of every 7 people on the planet, CNN reported, adding that the site has a presence in more than 200 sovereign territories.

Will bandh reverse Cauvery tide?

DC CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU, OCT. 6

Theatres, multiplexes and shopping malls opened after 6 pm. But there were few visitors. Although, sudden showers put paid to weekend plans, Bengalureans rediscovered the joys of walking

The dawn-to-dusk Karnataka bandh called to protest the release of Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu brought all life to a halt in the city on Saturday. While the day was largely peaceful, stray incidents of stone pelting, burning of tyres and deflating of vehicle tyres to keep them off the roads, kept the police on its toes.

While the NH-4 leading to Tamil Nadu was blocked, hitting inter-state transport, the BMTC pulled its buses off the roads after some were stoned early in the day in KR Puram. Metro services came to a halt around 1 pm after activists of the Karnataka Rakshana Vedike (KRV) protested at the MG Road station and the KSRTC withdrew its day services as well, but resumed them at night.

Hundreds of passengers who arrived at the Passengers arriving at the Bengaluru International Airport (BIA) in the morning preferred to stay back at the airport till the evening fearing violence in the city. Airport cabs and BMTC Vayuvajra services too refused to operate.

While six Mysore bound trains were cancelled, the Mysore-Jaipur train was diverted in anticipation of protests at the Cantonment railway station.

At Banashankari, KRV activists staged a dharna in front of a private school that had not announced a holiday for its students, leaving it no choice but to close. In another incident, a man claiming to be an office bearer of the Gadi Nadu Hitha Rakshana Vedike was assaulted by a group of supporters of former Chief Minister, B.S. Yeddyurappa after he allegedly passed a negative comment against him, at Mourya circle. But Additional Commissioner of Police (law and order), T. Suneel Kumar, said except for a few such cases, the bandh was largely peaceful.

While BWSSB and BESCOM services remained unaffected, BBMP commissioner, Rajneesh Goel said garbage disposal was interupted for a few hours after a few garbage trucks were stoned in the morning. "The service will resume on Sunday," he assured.

Meanwhile, a delegation of the Kannada film industry met Governor H.R. Bhardwaj in the afternoon and requested him to intervene in the Cauvery dispute on the state's behalf. Speaking to reporters, former MP and actor, Ambareesh said the Governor had assured that he would do his best to protect the interests of the state.

STATE RELEASES 24,000 CUSECS

SHILPA P. | DC
BENGALURU, OCT. 6

In an attempt to strengthen its case in the Supreme Court, Karnataka released almost thrice the daily quota of 9,000 cusecs of water of the Cauvery to Tamil Nadu on Saturday.

The authorities at Krishnarajasagar dam released 24,000 cusecs as against the apex court's order of 9,000 cusecs a day till October 15. It would take 48 hours for water to flow into the measuring station at Biligundlu, ahead of the hearing of the state's interlocutory application by the apex court on Monday.

On Monday, the state's counsel would inform the apex court that the order has been complied with till date. "This will help us to seek immediate suspension of the court order," sources said.

After a meeting with the team of officers from New Delhi, water resources minister Basavaraj Bommai was confident the report submitted to the Cauvery Monitoring Committee would favour the state.

SMK TO PM: STOP WATER TO TN

DC CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU, OCT. 6

Expressing his solidarity with the people of the Cauvery basin, External Affairs minister S.M. Krishna on Saturday appealed to Prime Minister Manmohan Singh to immediately stop further release of water from the Cauvery to Tamil Nadu.

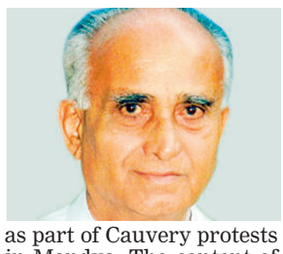

In a letter, copies of which were released here on Saturday, Mr Krishna, who, is on a visit to the US, noted that the situation was "grim" in the Cauvery delta. He also asked the PM to seek a report from the team that has been deputed to assess the water situation.

The senior Congress leader, who is from Maddur in Mandya district, said the situation was bad in Bengaluru too due to the depleted water level in dams after release of water.

The South-West monsoon in the state had petered out while the North-East monsoon will commence in Tamil Nadu and that state has the prospect of adequate rains.

NO ENTRY TO MANDYA, BSY TOLD

S.V. KRISHNA CHAITANYA | DC
MYSORE, OCT. 6

In a huge blow to former chief minister B.S. Yeddyurappa, who was banking on the Cauvery agitation to boost his political fortunes, Cauvery Hitarakshana Samiti chairman G. Madegowda on Saturday had to reject the Lingayat strongman's plea of joining the agitation following a thumbs down by the farmers, whose cause the BJP leader had always claimed he espoused.

Mr Yeddyurappa had written a letter to Mr. Madegowda seeking permission to participate in the one-day hunger strike as part of Cauvery protests in Mandya. The content of the letter was read out by Mr. Madegowda on Saturday morning to the protesters. The resounding thumbs-down ended Mr.

Yeddyurappa's hopes of joining the Cauvery agitation with Mr Madegowda politely conveying the message that he was advised against stepping into Mandya.

Did Shettar miss the boat?

R JAYAPRAKASH | DC
BENGALURU, OCT. 6

Would the Cauvery issue have taken a completely different turn if Chief Minister Jagadish Shettar had stuck to his guns and not released water to Tamil Nadu as he had planned?

Insiders who were part of the all party meeting said that the Hubli leader and now chief minister, had told his party colleagues and rivals from other parties that he was planning to court arrest rather than release water to TN.

But perhaps aware that the little known Shettar would then emerge as a 'statesman' and be feted in the Cauvery basin, something that none of the CMs from the basin including S.M. Krishna, H.D. Kumaraswamy, Deve Gowda or B.S. Yeddyurappa would have liked, given the political mileage he would have gained, he was stopped in his tracks by political bigwigs cutting across party lines. They would have to live with the fact that with this one masterstroke, a second-rung leader in the BJP from North Karnataka would become a cult figure in the Cauvery basin.

"He had made up his mind not to release water and was prepared to go to jail for the people of Cauvery basin. A calculated but risky proposition that would have made him a hero overnight. But, Shettar finally acceded to the pulls and pressure of veteran leaders from the state," an insider said.

Madegowda in failing health

DC CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU, OCT. 6

The health of Cauvery Hitarakshana Samiti chairman G. Madegowda has been deteriorating, and the doctors are continuously monitoring the 85-year-old.

Samiti member and former minister Atmananda said, "He wants to carry on with the fight till the end. He is our leader and we all are working under his guidance. But considering his age, we have to take a call at some point."

LPG price up ₹11.42, but dealers want even more

DC CORRESPONDENT'
NEW DELHI, OCT 6.

The price of a non-subsidised LPG cylinder was hiked by ₹127 on October 1

Price of domestic subsidized LPG cylinder on Saturday was hiked by ₹11.42 after government increased the commission paid to the dealers. Government took the decision after a section of the LPG dealers had threatened to go on a strike.

However, a section of LPG dealers were not happy with the hike and said that they will raise their demands with the petroleum minister S. Jaipal Reddy on Tuesday.

"We deem this move unacceptable and stick to our original demands. We want to end the black marketing that exists and create a proper implementation system which ensure proper service and proper price to all users. But if our pleas are not heard we will be forced to take drastic action," said National Federation of LPG distributors of India (NFLDI), general secretary, Pawan Soni.

The prices of petrol and diesel will also go up marginally in coming days as petroleum ministry is considering hike in petrol pump owners commission.

After the hike the subsidized LPG in Delhi will now cost ₹410.42 per cylinder, up from ₹399. Petroleum ministry raised the commission paid to the LPG dealers from Rs 25.83 per 14.2-kg cylinder to Rs. 37.25, said government officials. The hike will be passed on to the consumer.

LPG dealers commission on non-subsidised LPG too has been raised by ₹12.17 to ₹38 per cylinder. After this, a non-subsidised LPG cylinder price will go up from ₹883.5 to ₹921.5 in Delhi.

Government had recently hiked the price of non-subsidised domestic LPG cylinder by around ₹127 from October 1.

Last month, government had decided to restrict the supply of subsidized domestic LPG cylinders to consumers at six cylinders (of 14.2 kg) per annum.

However, in the current fiscal till 31 March 2013, subscribers will get only three subsidised LPG cylinders.

Petrol pumps owners demanded that their commission should also be hiked by the same percentage as those of LPG dealers — ₹2.10 a litre for petrol and ₹1.33 per litre for diesel.

Licence to kill: Brosnan did it best

Soft-spoken Pierce Brosnan has totted up the highest number of kills as James Bond out of the six actors who have taken up the role of the iconic spy till now, it was revealed on the 50th anniversary of the famous film franchise.

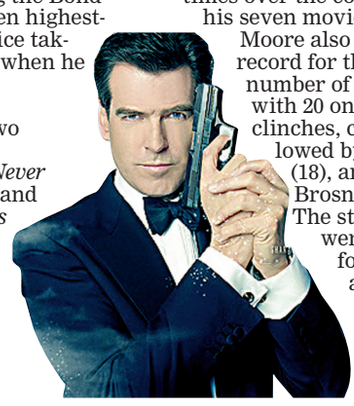

Roger Moore and Sean Connery closely follow with 51 kills each, with Craig trailing in fourth place with 25, despite his movies generally being described as grittier and more violent.

As well as proving the most lethal, Brosnan helped bring the Bond series its then highest-ever box office takings in 1995 when he starred in Goldeneye.

His next two Bond films, Tomorrow Never Dies in 1997 and The World Is Not Enough in 1999, unfortunately didn't match the success of the first, but his fourth and final film Die Another Day again broke a box office record in 2002 taking $431,971,116. This record was then smashed to smithereens when Daniel Craig took up the mantle in 2006 for Casino Royale, which made $594,239,066.

Incredibly, Craig has uttered the famous phrase "Bond. James Bond" only once in all of his three films, which include Quantum of Solace' and Skyfall.

Unsurprisingly, Roger Moore has said it far more than any other Bond — ten times over the course of his seven movies.

Moore also holds the record for the highest number of kisses with 20 onscreen clinches, closely followed by Connery (18), and Brosnan (12). The statistics were collated for the 50th anniversary of the Bond films. — PTI
